Councilman James is a proponent of public safety, which stems from his history in law enforcement. He is dedicated to making Cayce as safe as possible for all residents and visitors and regularly looks at opportunities to improve the security of the city.

James is proud to support and promote the importance of veterans who call Cayce home. As Executive Director of the Lexington Medical Center Foundation, he's helped highlight veterans through the organization's speaking series; works with the West Metro Chamber of Commerce to organize Honor Flights to Washington, D.C., for area veterans; and has put together newsletters to showcase the accomplishments local veterans. He always welcomes new opportunities to highlight the accomplishments of veterans near and far.

Economic development is another issue James champions. He works hard to highlight the great opportunities new businesses and developments can bring to Cayce, and as the Lexington Medical Center Foundation's Executive Director, he helped bring the hospital system's new offices to Cayce.
